Loving Hands to Adorn the Mounds of the Heroic Dead.

PROGRAM OF THE MEMORIAL SERVICES

The Interesting Exercises Tomorrow at the Various Cemeteries.

IN PROSE AND POETRY

Sumner Post, No. 9, John P. Quander, Commander, Charles Sumner Post, No. 9, John P. Quander, commander. Charles P. Stone Post, No. 11, J. W. Bradbury, senior vice commander. Marine Drum Corps. U. S. Grant Post, No. 12, Wm. E. Horton, commander. Phil. Sheri-Tomorrow in all of the various cemeteries about this city the annual tribute of flowers will be paid to the memories of those who died for their country. The mounds of the graves of the heroic dead, now covered with the soft mantle of spring, will be strewn with flowers. When loving hands have completed this patriotic duty orators and poets will celebrate the achievements and exalt the spirit which animated those who died in order that their country might live. For more than a quarter of a century this national holiday has been observed. Each year during this long period flowers have been placed upon soldiers' graves in all parts of the country, and the words have been spoken which have kept fresh in the minds and in the hearts of the rising generation, as well as those of their contemporaries, the memories and the deeds of been placed upon soldiers' graves in all poraries, the memories and the deeds of those who lost their lives in the late civil conflict.

As may be seen from the elaborate programs which are given below, the lapse of time has not served to dull the appreciation or to lessen the gratitude with which patri-otic deeds are regarded. While Memorial day has been observed in this city from year to year during the quarter of a cen-tury past with more or less elaborateness, this year the programs at the various cemeteries are full and complete, and give prom-ise of an observance of Memorial day as full of interest as that of any previous year. As has always been the case, the ceremonies at the various cemeteries will be under the direction of the comrades of the Department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic. The members of the various posts, under the escort of the District militia and the Union Veterans, will march from their headquarters to Arlington. A number of the comrades will be occupied at the other competeries where the programs. at the other cemeteries, where the programs will be of equal interest, and as elaborate as the one at Arlington. The monuments of the distinguished soldiers scattered through the city will be decorated with flags and wreaths. The day is a national holiday, and there will be a general suspension of military and the second secon pension of public and private business, in order that all may be free to unite in this beautiful, yet simple, tribute to the mem-ories of those who died in the cause of their
